"IRRESISTIBLE DRIVE" ON KHARKOV FRONT

RUSSIANS CLAIM MANY SUCCESSES

"FEARFUL DEMANDS" ON BOTH SIDES AT KERCH

RUSSIAN troops are speeding up the pace of their fierce advance on the Kharkov front, according to the Press Association and Reuter. German reinforcements, after a forced march from the rear, supported by more tanks and artillery, have failed to stem the drive, and the Red Army has stormed more small towns, villages and centres of resistance.

Advancing on a 40-50 miles front, Timoshenko's men have crossed the River Donetz—on whose left bank Kharkov stands—north and south of the city.

On the Kerch peninsula, after six days' bitter fighting, the German High Command claims that its troops are battering at the "gates of Kerch," the strongly-defended hilltop town on the peninsula's north-eastern tip.

The German-Rumanian effort to reach the Kerch Straits—a success which would bring them opposite the "side-door" to the Caucasus—is being stubbornly contested by the Soviet troops.

NEW SOVIET ATTACK

Fifteen miles north of Taganrog and about 200 miles south of the Kharkov battle area, a new Russian push is reported from Axis sources against the German positions centred on Pokrovsk. Not only would Taganrog, a German "hedge hog," already long by-passed by the advance along the Azov shore, be seriously endangered by such a movement, but success here and the large-scale operations at Kharkov would seriously complicate the whole position of the German armies east of the Dnieper "elbow" and in the Crimea. In their retreat from their Kharkov defence lines, the Germans are said to be abandoning large quantities of guns, tanks and supplies.

Heavy Russian tanks are forcing their way through the thick forest of fortifications designed to protect the vast reserves of material accumulated in the city itself. Through the gaps they create, infantry and artillery are pouring forward, and the Russian Air Force is playing its part with a series of attacks on supply lines, troop concentrations and gun emplacements. Reports from the German frontier fill in some of the details of the Donetz crossings. Russian armoured formations, they say, smashed their way across between Volchansk, 30 miles north-east of Kharkov and Huguyev, 20 miles to the south-east.

Latest news indicates that the Red Army is seven miles west of the river. The Germans are "retiring slowly" while awaiting the "imminent" arrival of still more reinforcements.

LATEST CLAIMS

Several more "villages and heights of strategic importance" have been captured on the Kharkov front, says Moscow radio. One Soviet unit dislodged the Germans from several key points. Eight guns and other war material were captured. Soviet troops "are inflicting blow after blow and are making successful advances. The offensive spirit of our troops is rising every minute. The operation is developing into an irresistible drive."

One Soviet unit manœuvred through a fierce barrage and captured three earth and timber forts. The Germans, hurled back from their fortified positions, lost about 200 killed. Soviet tanks played a particularly important part.

KERCH BATTLE

"Fearful demands are being made on the German and Russian troops fighting at Kerch before a decision can be forced," telephoned the Berlin Correspondent of the Swedish Nya Dagligt Allehanda. Soviet fortifications are extremely strong, he says. From the Azov to the Black Sea the Russians built a system of water-filled armoured ditches, around which were countless field defences, barbed wire enclosures and large concrete bunkers. Rain fell in the middle of the battle, turning the only two usable roads into lanes of mud. Ammunition and petrol had to be taken to the foremost positions by 'planes, and the speed of the German attack was reduced. Troops fought in mud up to their chests, holding their rifles above their heads. The Russians made a strong stand, and there was hand-to-hand fighting in several districts.

General Koslov's forces are being given invaluable support by the guns of Black Sea warships, Moscow radio says. Under their ceaseless barrage the Axis troops are, according to Stockholm reports, being held back from the outskirts of the town. Constant attacks by Luftwaffe units assembled during the last few nights, before von Manstein began his attack, are believed to have been mainly responsible for the progress achieved.

Colonel Rossbach, Luftwaffe spokesman, in a broadcast, claimed that the Luftwaffe gained absolute air mastery in the first hour of the offensive.

LENINGRAD BATTLE

Two thousand Germans have been killed in a big battle on the Leningrad front, stated Red Army Commissar Litvinov on the Leningrad radio. Thirteen tanks, 11 guns, and a quantity of other war materiel were destroyed or captured. On another sector Soviet troops surrounded and stormed a locality, "N," while airmen bombed a concentration of tanks and armoured cars.

MIDNIGHT REPORT

"On the Kharkov sector our troops fought offensive actions and advanced. In two days' fighting they captured from the enemy 255 guns, destroyed and disabled over 250 enemy tanks, and shot down 40 German aircraft. On other sectors of the front nothing of importance took place.

"On May 14, twenty-five German aircraft were destroyed. Our losses were eleven aircraft. In the Barents Sea our warships sank one enemy transport and two coastguard vessels."

"GERMANS OUT OF KERCH"

—RUSSIAN REPORT

A Reuter telegram from the German frontier, dated Friday, states: Russians reported to have Germans out of Kerch, which they had partly occupied. Kerch had been occupied, except for the harbour area. Under cover of a heavy artillery barrage, Soviet tanks and infantry hurled the Germans back to the surrounding heights.

It is learned to-night, adds the telegram, that fighting on the Kerch Peninsula has slowed down during the last 24 hours. Heavy rain turned the ground into swampy mud.—(Reuter.)

An unconfirmed report says that Timoshenko's troops have broken through the first line of Kharkov's immediate defence ring and that fighting rages round the railway station in the north-east suburbs. North and south of Kharkov the Soviet offensive is developing on an ever-widening front. The whole line between Bielgorod and Smiyev, 70 miles apart, is in action.

BIG TANK BATTLE

A Reuter telegram from Moscow early this morning stated:—The first great tank battle of the year has been won by the Russians on a sector of the Kharkov front. Marshal Timoshenko is making considerable use of tank-borne shock troops, heavily armed with automatic weapons and backed by infantry in close support. The Germans are using a number of new-type 'planes.

TIMOSHENKO'S ARMY

Columbia Broadcasting System states that Timoshenko commands an army of 2,250,000 men, 3,000 tanks and 15,000 bomber 'planes.—(Reuter.)

MADAGASCAR LANDING

STORY OF THE ASSAULT

A hazardous landing of Royal Marines, who were brought safely through mine-strewn waters, enabling them to carry out a surprise assault, which played an important part in the Madagascar operations, were acknowledged yesterday in a joint British Admiralty and War Office communiqué.

"When our ships arrived off Courrier Bay, without loss, at the appointed time, the approaches were heavily mined, and during sweeping operations the corvette Auricula sank. Casualties were probably light. Troops landed here made such good progress that they captured the town of Diego Suarez by 4 p.m. that day. Another force, including the Royal Welch Fusiliers, Royal Scots Fusiliers, East Lancashire Regiment and South Lancashire Regiment, who landed simultaneously at Ambararata, met stiffer opposition as, supported by tanks, they advanced east towards Antsirana.

"Reinforcements were brought up, and the final assault on Antsirana was carried out after dark on the second night. At the same time the Marines landed in the defenders' rear, a valuable diversion, which played an important part in securing the speedy surrender of the town. The destroyer from which they landed had to negotiate minefields in the dark and pass between shore batteries in the half-mile wide Oranjia Pass, but accomplished the operation without casualties or damage. Our troops relieved several pockets of British resistance inside the enemy's lines, and, as a result, our casualties were far lighter than at first feared.

"Carrier-borne naval aircraft played a conspicuously successful part in the operations. They attacked the aerodrome at Antsirana, depriving the defence of air power, and rendered valuable support and co-operation to the naval and military forces."—(Press Association.)

FRENCH LOSSES

PORT LOUIS (MAURITIUS), Friday.—Colonel Cerbon, who commanded the French forces at Diego Suarez, has sent a message to the French Commander-in-Chief in the Madagascar capital, stating that the French casualties were about 150 killed and 500 wounded.—(Times Telegram, per Press Association.)

COURTS MAY SIT EARLIER

Gas rationing is giving Dublin solicitors thoughts of no food.

A proposal that the Courts should begin work half an hour earlier—at 10.30 a.m. — and rise at 3.30 p.m., instead of 4 p.m., was made at a general meeting of the Incorporated Law Society, yesterday. Mr. G. A. Overend, president, in the chair.

The proposal was made by Mr. A. E. Walker, who stated that members of the legal firms and their staffs could not hope to get home in good time to have a meal prepared before 7 p.m., especially while the Courts were sitting. He complained also that nowadays, when judges rose at 1.30 p.m., it was virtually impossible to get lunch.

The President expressed the fear that possibly, when they got the judges to rise earlier, the permitted hours for the use of gas would be veered around.

It was suggested by Mr. Ivan Howe, that the Council of the society should look into the question of auctioneers' fees, "which are all wrong and absolutely unreasonable," and the drawing up of contracts by auctioneers.

Tribute was paid to the late Mr. W. G. Wakely, secretary of the society.

"Won't be home, dear," he sleepily drawled,
When his wife, waiting up for him, called.
"I lent someone my bike
And I'm too tired to hike,
So I've had an ODEAREST installed."

HIGHER RAILWAY BONUSES

THREAT TO SERVICES

IN the teeth of a revelation that the Great Southern Railways Company had only 10,579 tons of coal in hand—the equivalent of two weeks' supply—and that the company could not afford to pay higher bonuses, the Railway Wages Board yesterday decided that all employés of the company who earn 58s. a week or less should receive a further bonus of 2s. a week, and that those whose salaries are between 58s. and 60s. a week should be given a bonus to bring their earnings up to the £3 level. It is of the opinion, also, that juniors should receive a bonus of 1s.

The disturbing news about the coal supplies was given by Mr. Hartnell Smith, advocate for the company. Opposing applications for increases made by three unions on behalf of 8,000 employés, he said:—"Since March last the issues of coal have substantially exceeded deliveries, and the quality has deteriorated, so that the operation of trains is becoming more difficult each day. As there is no indication of any improvement in the future, the continuance of the existing train service is doubtful."

The company, he said, submitted that its financial position, and the prospects under existing conditions of earning a net income in the future, showed that claims for increased wages could not be afforded. Even allowing for reduced imports, their coal would cost £107,000 more than last year.

Last year's drastically curtailed services were likely to operate for the whole of this year, and only essential travel could be catered for or encouraged. They were likely to lose £300,000 from a reduction of passenger traffic without any hope of reduction in expenditure. Indications were that the fresh meat traffic would be a dwindling commodity, and general merchandise and coal traffic receipts would probably decrease substantially.

Neither could they guarantee that the curtailments in the company's road services would be sufficient to meet the exigencies of the supply position, and lack of spare parts for their motor-vehicles would necessitate a further reduction of services. Overtime, caused by bad coal, etc., had accounted for more than half the £80,000 increase in wages and salaries paid to conciliation grades during 1941. The numbers employed during the last year had also increased, and, in the opinion of the company, there would be no balance after the payment of debenture interest and fixed charges to meet either an increase of wages or the payment of any dividends, if an adequate provision for arrears of work was to be made.

The Railway Wages Board decided also that a further bonus of 2s. 6d. (1s. 3d. for juniors) should be paid to employés of the L.M.S. and Belfast and County Down Companies, and to those members of the Great Northern Railway, County Donegal Joint Committee and Dundalk, Newry and Greenore Railways whose stations were in Northern Ireland. Members whose stations were in Eire should, in the opinion of the Board, get a bonus of 2s. a week (1s. for juniors).

Representing the unions were Mr. C. D. Watters (National Union of Railwaymen), Mr. W. P. Allen (Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen) and Mr. J. T. O'Farrell (Railway Clerks' Association).

GERMANS CLAIM U.S. CRUISER

German radio (says Reuter), quoting an official military source, gives details of an air attack on American warships in the North Atlantic when, it is claimed, a cruiser of the Pensacola class (9,000 tons) was sunk.

"The United States flotilla was sighted by German reconnaissance 'planes on Thursday morning, and the attack made through the heavy A.A. barrage Heavy bombs were dropped on the ships, which fled on a zigzag course. The heavy United States cruiser received several direct hits and was in flames immediately. At midnight the whole flotilla was stopped. The destroyers brought help, but the cruiser had received such heavy damage that it sank 300 kilometres north of North Cape."

A special German announcement stated that a destroyer was also sunk in the engagement, which took place between North Cape (Norway) and Spitzbergen.

FUTURE DAIL SITTINGS

Difficulties which have arisen in connection with transport may lead to drastic alterations in the times of sittings of the Dail. The party whips have been considering the situation and certain tentative arrangements have been reached.

Next week it is proposed the usual three-day sittings will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, while in the following week, beginning with Tuesday, 26th May, there will be four days' sittings, with a possible Saturday sitting, from 10.30 in the morning till 2 o'clock. The House will meet again on Monday, 1st June, and on the Tuesday and Wednesday of that week. The further sittings will depend on the state of public business and the measures which the Government will have to put before the House.

FATE OF FRENCH SHIPS

FRENCH FRONTIER, Friday.—Orders to scuttle the 40 French merchant ships at Martinique rather than hand them over to America, are reported to have been sent to Admiral Robert, High Commissioner, by the French Ministry of Marine. The ships, totalling about 140,000 tons, include many tankers. Stephane Lauzanne, in the Paris newspaper Matin, who makes this statement, gives as the reason for the order a clause in the armistice terms by which Marshal Pétain undertook not to cede any French merchant ships to a foreign Power. It is reported from Washington that the French naval vessels at Martinique are being demobilised.—(Reuter.)

The King has approved the appointment of Major-General Sir Arthur F. Smith as General Officer Commanding London District, in succession to Lieut.-General Sir Bertram N. Sergison-Brooke, with effect from June 1 next.

MEXICO'S PROTEST TO GERMANY

WAR MAY FOLLOW

THE Mexican Government, following the sinking of a Mexican tanker through U-boat action, has sent a 14 days' ultimatum to Germany demanding complete satisfaction and guarantees for compensation. Failing this, Mexico will take the measures dictated by national honour, says Reuter.

Reports from Mexico City say that the capital is seething with fury, and demands are heard on all sides for a declaration of war.

OFFICIAL REPORT

A very energetic protest has been sent to Germany, Italy and Japan, demanding complete satisfaction and guarantees of compensation by May 28, an official statement says. Failing this Mexico will take "measures dictated by national honour."

An extraordinary session of Congress to declare war on the Axis was urged by the leader of the Senate, Señor Leon Garcia, says Associated Press in a telegram from Mexico City. He said he planned to make such a motion yesterday at a special meeting of the Permanent Congressional Commission. Señor Garcia, who is the spokesman in the Senate for the President, General Avila Camacho, told journalists, "We view with extreme gravity the events provoked by the torpedoing of the Portrero del Llano. It is absolutely indispensable that our country should declare war on the Nazi and Fascist Powers. I will propose that Congress be convoked with all urgency for an extraordinary session to discuss it."

The Commission sits when Congress is not in session.

APPROVAL IN U.S.

The protest drew general diplomatic and Congressional approval, says Reuter in a telegram from Washington. Legislative quarters released a barrage of outspoken comment on what was termed a "dastardly attack." Senator Hill declared that "the fact that the ship was brilliantly illuminated, with large Mexican flags painted on the sides, shows that no nation in this hemisphere is safe."

U-BOATS IN GULF

WASHINGTON, Friday — A U.S. merchantman has been torpedoed and sunk off the mouth of the Mississippi River, says Reuter.

The vessel, a large one, says the Navy Department, was attacked about 102 miles south of New Orleans, capital of Louisiana, on Tuesday afternoon. An explosion shook the east jetty of the south-west passage to the Mississippi early in the morning the same day.

Twenty-seven of the crew of 41 were killed in the explosion, or in the fire which followed, and the remainder were injured, says the Associated Press. Apparently the U-boat waited to attack on the shallow Mississippi bottom. The ship was hit by three torpedoes as she was waiting to enter the River.

The merchantman is the 156th vessel belonging to the United Nations whose torpedoing has been announced by the Navy Department since the attack on Pearl Harbour.

"LOOSE TALK"—FOOTNOTE

WASHINGTON, Friday—The President at his Press conference returned to the subject of "loose talk," about which he had lectured at a recent meeting of the Pacific War Council, says The Times correspondent.

His remarks, he said, had not been intended to apply to the Australian Prime Minister, Mr. Curtin, and his country as a whole was tight-lipped—but Washington was not. There had been too much talk from other places, moreover, such as India, Egypt and South America.—(Copyright, per Press Association.)

DESTROYER CASUALTIES

Lieutenant-Commander W. F. E. Hussey, D.S.O., D.S.C., Commander of H.M.S. Lively—one of the three destroyers lost after being heavily attacked by German aircraft in the Eastern Mediterranean on Monday—has been killed in action, his wife learned officially yesterday. The other destroyers sunk were Jackal and Kipling. The British Admiralty stated that more than 500 officers and men were saved from the three ships, whose combined complements would probably be under 600.—(Press Association.)

BRITISH WAR DEBATE

It has now been arranged, says the Press Association, that Mr. Attlee shall open the two-days' debate on the war in the Commons. Sir Stafford Cripps will wind up for the Government on the second day replying to criticisms. Mr. Churchill will not take part unless events between now and the debate justify his intervention.

WAR ON CYCLE THIEVES

THE Civic Guard have declared war on Dublin cycle thieves. So great has the menace of organised stealing in the city become that special plans have been devised to deal with it. Some of the plans have not been divulged, but, generally, the idea is to operate specially trained patrols in the city and suburbs.

Duties of the special patrols include the stopping of all cyclists, who will be interrogated, and, if their answers are deemed unsatisfactory, they may be taken to the nearest barracks, where the machines will be examined. Experts will go over the bicycle for any trace of tampering.

JUDGE AND THEFTS

Several cases of bicycle stealing were dealt with in the Circuit Criminal Court yesterday by Judge Shannon, who said that people who steal bicycles must expect little leniency. In one case he passed sentence of three years' imprisonment on a man who was found guilty of receiving stolen bicycles.

Patrick Quinn (23), Corporation Buildings, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for the larceny of a number of bicycles in Dublin, in August and September last.

Later, Quinn gave evidence, when Thomas Whelan (45), mechanic, The Demesne, Killester, was charged with receiving six bicycles knowing them to have been stolen, stating in effect that he stole bicycles and handed them over to Whelan, when he received certain payments.

HEAVY SENTENCE

Whelan, from the dock, said that he was given to understand that the bicycles belonged to people who were going to England. When any bicycle was sold Quinn got the money.

The jury found Whelan guilty, and he was sentenced to three years' penal servitude to be reduced to eighteen months if it were found that Whelan lost his pension from the Irish Government. Whelan stated that he had been in the British Army before getting mixed up in the trouble here. He was a dispatch rider, he added, for Michael Collins.

OTHER SENTENCES

Pleading guilty to receiving stolen bicycles, James Kelly (23), of Anner road, Cabra, who collapsed in the dock, was sentenced to twenty months' imprisonment with hard labour.

George Dudley (17), James Hannan (17), John Nash (17), and Joseph McDermott (18), all of Corporation Buildings, were sentenced to seven, seven, six and six months respectively for the larceny of bicycles.

Michael Corcoran (27), South Great George's street, who pleaded guilty to the larceny of twelve bicycles, was put back until next Thursday.

George Joseph Mahood (35), Eden Villas, Glasthule, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for stealing a bicycle, and nine months' imprisonment for receiving a quantity of stolen jewellery, sentences to run concurrently. Michael Mahood (14), his nephew, who pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of jewellery and other property, valued at £179, from the house of Mr. F. Brosnan, Castlepark road, Dalkey, was put back until next Sessions for judgment of his behaviour in the meantime.

JAPANESE POURING INTO CHINA

ALLIED TROOPS FROM BURMA REACH INDIA

NEW Japanese successes in Yunnan Province include the fall of Tengchung, 50 miles west of Paoshan, the Burma Road town 100 miles inside the China frontier.

The Allied garrison from Akyab, the West Burman port, has arrived in India.

A New Delhi message says that General Alexander's men fought their way out of a precarious forward salient in the Chindwin Valley, and have now reached a more secure area—presumably on Indian soil.

Chinese forces nearing Myitkyina, most northerly town in Burma, and terminus of the railway from Mandalay, are said to be meeting with little opposition as they advance through the thinly-held Japanese rear. Another Chinese column is said to be within striking distance of Wanting, Yunnan frontier station.—(Reuter.)

EVACUATED BY SEA

NEW DELHI, Friday.—General Alexander's forces have succeeded in extricating themselves from the dangerous situation which developed after the successful Japanese thrust against Lashio. They have now been withdrawn to a more secure area, the military spokesman announced.

"The retirement from the salient," says Reuter, "was a deliberate action, in which General Alexander's men had time, not only to move successfully, but also to deal with their heavy equipment, which they were forced to abandon because of transportation difficulties."

A small British force which was left in Akyab, Burmese port, to carry out demolition work after the British withdrawal, has been successfully evacuated by sea to India. They left in merchant vessels with a naval escort, after they had supervised the evacuation of refugees and the demolition of anything useful to the Japanese, including the aerodrome.—(Reuter.)

MINESWEEPERS SUNK

TRAWLERS HIT IN CONVOY

British fighters attacked three German minesweepers off the north coast of the Cherbourg Peninsula yesterday afternoon, says the Press Association. The minesweepers were first sighted and reported by the reconnaissance aircraft. The attack was made from a low level by Spitfires and Hurricane bombers, when the minesweepers were about four miles off shore, steaming at ten knots, in line abreast, in a westerly direction. One minesweeper was hit amidships, and it blew up. Another was set on fire and left sinking. A third was hit and damaged. One British aircraft is missing from this operation.

On Thursday night, says a British Admiralty communiqué, light forces encountered two armed trawlers off the French Channel coast. They were at once engaged, and both trawlers were left disabled and sinking. No casualties or damage were suffered by the British forces in this brief engagement.

Early on Wednesday morning a patrol of British light forces encountered a convoy close to the French coast, and succeeded in penetrating the screen of escort vessels. A running fight followed, in which an enemy ship was hit by a torpedo.

The Germans have admitted that one of their torpedo boats was sunk in this engagement. Considerable other damage and casualties were undoubtedly inflicted, says the communiqué. Reconnaissance next morning showed that the Germans still were searching for survivors. One British light coastal craft did not return from this engagement, and the Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that she must be considered lost. The next-of-kin have been informed.—(Press Association.)

YUNNAN TOWN FALLS

CHUNGKING, Friday. — The Japanese captured Tengchung, 50 miles west of Paoshan, in Yunnan Province, on Monday says the Chinese communiqué. Japanese troops from Bhamo are striking westward and have crossed the Irrawaddy. "A Chinese counter-offensive in Burma is expected here at any moment," says Reuter, adding: "Vanguards are within 25 miles of Kyitkyina, and another Chinese column is within striking distance of Wanting." The southern Japanese column moving up the Salween River, in Yunnan, from Lungling, in an attempt to join the Japanese at Tengchung, is suffering heavy losses, it was officially stated. Chinese troops are still holding out in the Katha sector, about 150 miles north of Mandalay. Japanese bombers are continuing their attacks on towns in Central China, where yesterday they bombed Hengyang, an important railway junction in Southern Hunan, Yushan, in eastern Kiangsi, and Lanki railway terminus, north-west of Kinhwa, the capital of Chekiang Province. Yushan has now been attacked almost daily for over a week. The objective of Japan's present campaign in Central China was to prevent Chinese, with the aid of American airmen from bombing Formosa and the Japanese islands, an army spokesman said. The main task now, he said, is to destroy all the aerodromes in the eastern provinces.—(Reuter.)

PLENTY OF 'PLANES

SYDNEY, Friday.—A Japanese attack on Port Moresby yesterday was carried out by twice the usual raiding force—a clear indication of Japan's power to supply bombers and fighters to their advanced bases.

AXIS LOSSES OVER MALTA

Five Axis 'planes were destroyed over Malta yesterday, and six others were damaged, says a Reuter message. Raiding activity consisted mainly of fighter sweeps, according to a communiqué. The Royal Air Force had no losses. One of the 'planes shot down was a night bomber. Twenty-one machines were destroyed or damaged on Thursday. Of these, six bombers and five fighters were destroyed; the other ten were damaged.

ROAD TRAINS

HOW TURF COULD BE CARRIED

Road trains bringing huge quantities of turf from the Midland bogs to Dublin are visualised by Mr. R. N. Tweedy in a pamphlet, "Turf or Nothing," which has just been published.

Mr. Tweedy's idea is that the chassis of many of the motor cars now demobilised could be used as the basis of specially constructed waggons suitable for the carrying of turf. As many as ten of these waggons could be coupled together and drawn by either a motor tractor or steam engine. In this way twenty or thirty tons of turf could be brought from the Midlands on the one journey instead of the four or five tons which the biggest lorries in use can transport at the moment.

The idea has been discussed by several people interested in turf transport. They agreed that the trains and the canals could not hope to bring to Dublin all the turf required for the coming winter. Nowadays efficiency and speed must go, and, so long as the turf reached its destination, that is all that is necessary. A hundred road trains would help in getting this done. Of course, difficulties are foreseen. There is, for example, the difficulty concerned with the coupling of the waggons so that S-bends could be negotiated. This should be overcome by Irish engineers. There would also have to be a scheme for compensation to owners of cars.

DUBLIN'S 20/6 RATE

A rate of 20s. 6d. in the £ was struck at a special meeting of the Dublin Corporation, at which the Lord Mayor, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D., presided.

Ex-Councillor Ralph Lynch, ex-Councillor P. Belton, T.D., and Mr. Patrick Keogh, Kenilworth villas, Kenilworth road, Dublin, were elected by co-option to the Corporation to fill vacancies caused by the death of Alderman Tom Kelly, T.D., and the non-payment of rates by two members.

GERMAN BOMBER SHOT DOWN

Early yesterday evening, according to the British Air Ministry, a German bomber was destroyed by fighters off the East coast of England. Apart from this, there was nothing to report during daylight. One of the small number of German aircraft which dropped bombs on the South-West coast of England on Thursday was shot down by anti-aircraft gunfire.

At the Rathfarnham District Court yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, Alfred Edmonds, Mark's Alley, Dublin, was fined £2 for being disorderly at Templeogue. Sergeant Molloy said that Edmonds asked a man for his 'bus fare to Dublin, and when it was refused he struck him.

Marking Time

Reports from the Russian front continue to suggest that fighting is taking place on a considerable scale; but it is impossible at the moment to say whether or not a major offensive is being inaugurated. According to the latest bulletins, two principal movements are in progress. In the Kerch Peninsula the Germans are attacking in strength in an effort to clear the Crimea of Soviet troops. For six days now there has been bitter fighting in the neighbourhood of Kerch town, which seems still to be in Russian hands, although General von Manstein has been throwing large numbers of men and tanks into the battle. General Koslov, the Russian commander in the peninsula, has been forced to retreat in several places; but he has shown unexpected powers of resistance in others, and, although the Germans are attacking in the most determined manner, relying, as usual, on local superiority in the air, Kerch, which has been described as the "side-door" to the Caucasus, has not yet been captured. Apparently, in an effort to relieve the German pressure on Kerch, the Russians have started a minor offensive about fifteen miles north of Taganrog and south of Stalino; but their main counter-attack has been launched in the Kharkov area, both north and south of the city. Here fighting is in progress on a front of between forty and fifty miles. It seems that Marshal Timoshenko is pressing forward with fierce determination in this region. According to reports from the United States, he has at his disposal a force of 2,500,000 men, three thousand tanks, and fifteen thousand bombing aircraft. The River Donetz has been crossed at a number of points, and to the south of Kharkov the Soviet troops are stated to have advanced some seven miles west of the river. The Germans have been bringing up strong reinforcements in an attempt to stem Marshal Timoshenko's latest drive; but the Russians claim to be advancing steadily, and to have captured several "inhabited localities" and "strategic heights" which constitute part of Kharkov's defences. There also is renewed activity in the far north. German reports admit that the Russians have broken through the Wehrmacht's lines near Volkov, south-east of Leningrad; but to what extent this local success can be regarded as part of a combined movement is as yet unknown.

So far Russians and Germans alike have been merely sparring for position. Neither side seems to be certain yet regarding the strength of the other; but the German reports admit frankly that the Soviet troops are well equipped, and that they have adequate supplies of tanks and aircraft. It still is impossible to predict which side will take the real initiative. Up to the present honours seem to be fairly easy. The Germans have attacked in the Crimea; the Russians have undertaken the offensive against Kharkov and in the far north. Weather conditions now are such that military operations on a big scale are feasible; and, if the Russians intend to attack in force, they probably will make a move within the next week or so. The Germans are in a slightly different position. Their policy, in the nature of things, must be dictated for the time being by the strategy of the Anglo-American allies. According to a statement in the House of Commons during the week, Britain's total losses in dead during the first two years of the war were less than fifty thousand. This figure, of course, does not include the losses in Malaya and Singapore; but it is remarkably low, and, in comparison with the losses on the Western front in the last war, it is almost negligible. Since the evacuation from Dunkirk, the British have been building up a huge army within their own shores. They have sent substantial numbers of troops to the Middle East, to North Africa, and elsewhere; but it is estimated that at the moment they have at least three million highly-trained and well-equipped men at home. They also have a Home Guard of some two million men trained to repel any attempt at invasion. In addition to this formidable force, considerable numbers of American troops have been sent across the Atlantic. The British Air Force has increased and multiplied during the last twelve months, and altogether the Anglo-Saxon allies by this time ought to be well prepared for either defensive or offensive action. Until they show their hand the Germans will be at a strategic disadvantage. They would be exceedingly foolish to undertake a major offensive against Russia so long as there is a chance of a British-American invasion of the Continent; and the Germans certainly are not fools. Consequently, it is quite possible that, for the present, offensive action against the Russians will be confined to local attacks; but, of course, the Gordian knot always may be cut by the Russians themselves.

The Boys' Brigade

The Jubilee inspection of the Dublin Battalion of the Boys' Brigade will be held in the I.R.F.U. grounds, Lansdowne road, this afternoon. This inspection marks the fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of the Boys' Brigade in Dublin. In 1883 Sir William Smith founded the "B.B." in Glasgow with a company of only thirty boys. The movement proved an instantaneous success, and before long battalions were being formed throughout the length and breadth of England, Wales, and Scotland. In 1890 the Rev. Monk Gibbon, curate of St. Matthias's parish, decided to form a Dublin battalion, and, with the help of William O'Connor, the first parade of the new company—the First Dublin—was held in February, 1891. The other parishes soon followed suit, and before many months had passed there was hardly a parish in Dublin without its company of the B.B. In 1933, when the general Jubilee of the Boys' Brigade was celebrated in Glasgow, over 30,000 officers and boys, from all parts of the world, attended. To-day the movement has grown into a world-wide organisation with about 100,000 members; over 1,000,000 boys already have passed through the ranks. In the fifty years since its foundation in Dublin, the Boys' Brigade has changed little in its outward aspect, and not at all so far as ideas and ideals are concerned. The motto, "Sure and Steadfast," remains the same, and the Object, "The advancement of Christ's Kingdom among boys, and the promotion of habits of obedience, reverence, discipline, self-respect and all that tends towards a true Christian manliness," remains precisely the same as it was when the organisation first was founded. The simple, but distinctive, uniform—cap, belt and haversack, introduced by the founder—has not changed at all; and the crest, which originally consisted solely of an anchor, was augmented with the crest of the Life Boys' Life Brigade when the merger of 1926 occurred, and now consists of an anchor and cross—the symbols of the Object of the organisation. Throughout the past fifty years the Dublin Battalion of the Boys' Brigade has done much that it may be proud of; it is to be hoped that it will continue in the same fine tradition.

ADELAIDE HOSPITAL
APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

The Provost of Trinity College (Dr. E. H. Alton), at the annual meeting of the Adelaide Hospital yesterday, said that when the Hospital Sweeps were first introduced he was doubtful, not about the morality, but about the ultimate and far-reaching consequences, of the "sweep."

Endorsing the appeal for further support made by the President of the hospital (Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Farnham, D.S.O.), the Provost said that he was very pleased to see one or two hospitals standing out against receiving aid from the "sweeps," and he was glad that the Adelaide had stood firmly to its resolve. He did not want to condemn the work which had been done for the hospitals by the "sweeps," but he wished that it had been done otherwise. The hospitals, he added, should be a national charge.

The report, presented by the hon. secretaries (Mr. H. M. Hall and Dr. R. T. Jackson) showed that the income for 1941 was £24,866, compared with £21,750 in 1940. The gap had been bridged by legacies. The expenditure in 1941 was £25,206, compared with £25,347 in 1940.

Lord Farnham moving the adoption of the report, which was seconded by the Provost and passed, said that their expenses were going to be greater, and unless something was done to increase their revenue they might have to restrict some of their activities. He thanked the Irish Times for its leading article supporting the appeal for funds.

Mr. W. B. Conyngham said that the Adelaide was the most outstanding example of the voluntary system in the city. A surgeon in another hospital had told him only that day that his heart was almost broken because he could not get beds for the children—and that in a Christian city. He did not think that Dr. Cronin would have written "Citadel" or an American writer "The Way of the Crucified" had they known the work of the Adelaide.

Professor Pearson also thanked the Irish Times for its help, and the Church of Ireland Gazette for its article dealing with the work of the hospital.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

A FIFTY per cent. slash in tea sales was ordered this week by the United States War Production Board, so as to conserve America's tea supplies. No formal rationing has yet been ordered, but all retailers are co-operating with the Government by limiting sales, so that the allotment of one-half of previous average purchases is distributed evenly. Many stores report that their tea supplies have been decreasing steadily for weeks. In tea-drinking neighbourhoods, where persons of Irish and English descent reside, there has been a "run" on tea for almost six months.

Geese from Eire

The Import Licensing Department of the Board of Trade is prepared to consider favourably licences for the admission of live Eire geese of this year's hatching, provided they are to be fattened on rough grass and waste products. The goose must be one of the most economical of poultry to raise. They are more adaptable than any other class of poultry to weather conditions, and thousands are raised annually on Irish bogs and the herbage of the wayside.

Furniture Storage

The Board of Trade has taken somewhat belated action to deal with the furniture storage ramp. Thousands of people have been paying exorbitant prices for the storage of what was left of their furniture following air-raid damage. From Monday next the Board's price control bans any increase above the charges at which storage contractors were accepting goods for storage on September 1, 1941, in the ordinary course of their business.

Dairy Disease

"I can offer no more striking evidence for the necessity of controlling dairy disease than the fact that disease losses are more than the total annual milk yield in Britain," declared Mr. R. S. Hudson, when, with several distinguished members of the veterinary profession, he was among the two thousand people who saw a demonstration on a farm in the County of Cheshire, where milk-production has dropped more since the war than in any other part of Britain. It was revealed that a deficit of no less than two hundred million gallons of milk a year — valued in peace-time values at £28,000,000 — is caused by the four main cattle diseases.

Profit Restriction

Lord Woolton is putting an elaborate scheme into force on August 24th to restrict the profit margins at present enjoyed by traders who perform more than one distributive function. The scheme covers the main groceries and provisions, but not milk, meat, fish or tea. The principles to be applied are, first, that traders performing two or more functions should not receive the full margins applicable to those functions, but should be paid for services rendered and enjoy only one profit; and, secondly, that one retailer should not obtain an advantage over another merely because he is able to obtain his supplies higher in the chain of distribution. That is to say, all retailers should pay the same price, subject to any carriage service they perform. On purchases made at first hand, a multiple shop owner will obtain two-thirds of the wholesale margin if he takes delivery at a central dépôt and redistributes at not less than ten branches. A wholesaler who owns or is associated with a retail shop will obtain one-third wholesale margin to represent the cost of the services performed by him, and a retailer will not obtain any portion of the wholesale margin, except in cases where he collects the goods from the first-hand supplier, in which case he will obtain one-third of the wholesale margin.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

O'Connell's "Coach-and-Four"

Looking through some old Dublin references lately, I was mildly surprised to note that as late as the eighteen-thirties, toll was being exacted for the use of main county roads, the resultant fund being administered for their upkeep, it would seem, by the Grand Jury.

One of the "toll-houses," I have been informed—possibly the last—occupied the site of the present Hart's Stores, at the junction of Botanic and Prospect roads, Glasnevin. The toll applied to the former thoroughfare, which was the high road to the village and the country beyond.

It was in order to circumvent the exaction that Daniel O'Connell projected and opened Prospect avenue, leading to the old gate of the cemetery, shortly after the establishment of the latter in 1832. This is said to have occasioned his oft-quoted remark that a coach-and-four may be driven through an Act of Parliament.

Toll-houses and turnpikes, which latter were very many in Dublin, may have had their economic advantages, but the citizens may not have considered them a blessing.

Probably the last of the turnpikes were those which stood until about 1850, on the Drumcondra road, opposite the present St. Alphonsus road, then called Turnpike lane; and at that spot on North Strand, now popularly designated "The Five Lamps."

Tales of Our Land

Here are two true tales:—

No. 1: A woman shopper, having to go into a very crowded shop, left her pram, containing her baby daughter, in the street for a very few minutes. On emerging to resume her travels, she was shocked to find neither pram nor baby, and a frantic and desperate search of the neighbourhood immediately took place.

Attracted by angry, but familiar, howls, she eventually dashed into a side street not far from the scene of the disappearance, and there found her unharmed, but indignant, baby securely strapped into a primitive sort of box-barrow on wheels, parked by the kerb. She has not since seen her pram.

No. 2: A County Cork chemist ran out of petrol one night last month about two or three miles outside the city. He locked his car and got a late 'bus into town. On his return next morning with a tin of petrol he found his formerly well-shod "Prefect" resting peacefully on four bare rims!

Seagulls' Eggs

An egg, in these times, is a rare event in the life of an Englishman, and seagulls' eggs are achieving immense popularity in many places. In Llandudno, I hear, they are retailed at a price of about 4d. each, a price which, before the war, would have been considered absurdly high, even for the best hen's egg available.

The seagulls' eggs are collected by small boys, who scale the cliffs looking for them. It is an extremely dangerous business, and the authorities have been forced to discourage it. People are asked not to buy eggs from the boys, as it is only tempting them to venture further afield on the cliffs, and to expose themselves to still greater dangers. Times have changed. In the old days boys would travel quite as far, and expose themselves to just as many dangers merely for the sake of adding the eggs to their collections of birds' eggs.

Final Curtain

Having played for a record nine weeks, to a total of fifty-five thousand people, the Richards-Walsh season at the Olympia Theatre, with "The Strings Are False," comes to an end to-night. Dubliners who have allowed this closing date to creep upon them unawares, and have put off a visit, can now only shake their heads regretfully; for it was a play which should have been seen by all.

They will, however, if they have the money and patience for a train journey to the provinces, be able to catch up on this theatrical event of the season; for Shelah Richards tells me that the company is going to Cork for a few weeks, and may go on from there to Limerick.

Following the Cork and (possibly) the Limerick runs, a short holiday spell is intended, after which rehearsals will begin again towards the middle of August. In September, Shelah Richards and Michael Walsh will return to the Olympia with "Amphitrion 38," the French comedy by Andre Giradoux.

For their Dublin production they have re-titled this "Don Jupiter," and the translation from the French has been done by Mrs. Sybil Le Brocquy. This play was a tremendous success both in London and New York, with Alfred Lunt and Lynne Fontaine.

QUIDNUNC.

OBITUARY
MR. W. H. ROBINSON

Mr. William Henry Robinson, Cullellan, Glenageary, who died on Thursday last, was Registrar of the Diocese of Dublin. He was educated at King's Hospital School, Blackhall place, Dublin, and, in 1877 became clerk to the former Registrar, the late Mr. Samuels. In 1900 he was appointed Registrar by Archbishop Peacocke, and later he served under Archbishops Bernard, D'Arcy and Gregg, and under the present Archbishop, the Most Rev. A. W. Barton, D.D. Mr. Robinson was also Registrar to the Court of the General Synod.

He was Father of the Parish of Christ Church, Kingstown, and also was Diocesan Synodsman, Parochial Nominator, and Secretary of the Select Vestry. For many years a member of the Dalkey Rifle Club, he was the winner of many trophies. For over half a century he was a member of the Masonic Order, and was also a member of the choir of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. Mr. Robinson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. T. Reid, who resides in Northern Ireland.

AN APPRECIATION

The Registrar's Office in 43 Kildare street will not seem the same for many years to our clergymen who have reached middle age; for to them that office was W. H. Robinson. He entered it more than sixty years ago, and, though the writing was on the wall for some years, could not think of resigning. His work there was his hobby, as well as his livelihood. Every clerical caller was made welcome from the day when he called to be initiated in the legal rites of qualification for Holy Orders and gradually found the warm heart and kindly interest which kept him young, however inexorably the years increased. In these days, when people are making of everything—whatever it is—a record, one must be careful, but Robinson's record must be hard to beat. He served under no fewer than seven Archbishops of Dublin—under five of them as Registrar—and his knowledge of law and precedent was encyclopædic. The Church was his life; for when he was not in his office he was engaged in some other Church activity. He sang in the choir of St. Patrick's Cathedral for nearly fifty years, and was a member of the choir of Christ Church, Kingstown, till the day of his death. He was also a diligent member of the Select Vestry, and a Parochial Nominator. On the completion of his fiftieth year—in 1926—in the Registrar's Office, his friends gave him a piece of plate and a cheque in token of their esteem, and it gave him great joy to know how many were his friends. Abbott's Logic tells us that a proper name has no connotation, but Robinson has a very full meaning in the Dublin Diocese.

MR. J. T. LENNON

The death occurred somewhat suddenly yesterday of Mr. J. T. Lennon, Assistant Secretary of the Revenue Commissioners. A comparatively young man, he had been an official in the Department of Agriculture and in the Department of Finance before going to the Revenue Department. He was Secretary of the Civil Service Commission on Reorganisation, which sat some years ago. In private life he gave much of his time to charitable work, and was a prominent member of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

MR. DENIS BOYLE

The death took place yesterday of Mr. Denis Boyle, J.P., for half a century well known to Derry business men as representative of Messrs. Gallaher, Belfast, and Kirker, Greer and Co., Belfast, and later as proprietor of the Ulster Hotel. He was formerly Deputy Vice-chairman of the Board of Guardians, and is survived by his wife.

CLOTHING FOR CHILDREN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—A great deal has been done by charitable organisations towards feeding the hungry children of Dublin, but the problem of clothing is equally urgent.

The Welfare Guild of the National Children's Hospital has been for some time clothing necessitous children connected with the hospital. Many of these children are in rags, their parents being unable to afford clothes for them. The majority are so badly shod that they would be better barefoot. During the last six months nearly 3,000 garments have been given out, and some 600 children clothed.

The Guild is now in urgent need of help to carry on this work, and are appealing for subscriptions and garments of all kinds (ages, infants to children of 16 years). Parcels and subscriptions should be sent to me, care of the National Children's Hospital.—Yours, etc.,

STOREEN SHARP,
Hon. Secretary, National Children's Hospital, Welfare Guild.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The U.S. at War

America in World Affairs. By Allan Nevins. Oxford University Press. 2/6 net.

How Strong Is America? By Noel Barber. Harrap and Co., Ltd. 6/- net.

THOSE who feel any doubt that the circumstances of history repeat themselves should remark how efforts made before December, 1941, to involve the United States of America in the present war were closely paralleled by those made by Genet in the last decade of the eighteenth century. This Girondin envoy of the newly constituted French Republic was an earlier Halifax, but, unlike him, his efforts to induce the United States to put a finger in the European pie—unsavoury then as now—were conducted with little regard to the restrictions of diplomacy. Genet began to treat the resources of America as if they had already been placed at the disposal of France, and finally ruined himself and his mission by appealing to the people against their rulers after he had been quite properly rebuked by Thomas Jefferson, then Secretary of State.

These, then, were the circumstances which gave origin to the warnings of John Adams and Jefferson against foreign embroilments on the part of the American Republic. These warnings have been a plank in American foreign policy since, and one feels that Allan Nevins's book loses much of its value as historical research by its obvious purpose in efforts to refute them. America's foreign policy, one is told, "has sometimes been timid, evasive, and destructively selfish."

Britain's Policy

In contrast, regard should be taken for the unchanging consistency of Britain's policy since the days of Elizabeth. Only in the past three decades has she seemed to deviate from her fixed imperial path. With these deviations in mind, one recalls Napoleon's verdict during his last days in exile on St. Helena: "England can never be a continental Power, and in that attempt she must be ruined. Let her stick to her sovereignty of the seas, and then she can send her ambassadors to the Courts of Europe and demand what she pleases." The indomitable spirit of the British people may yet falsify Napoleon.

Noel Barber makes somewhat depressing reading, inasmuch as he shows how ill-prepared America is, in a military and naval sense, to make war effectively. Like Britain, she is a maritime nation, and her strength depends on her sea-power. It is discouraging, therefore, to be asked to remember that "America needs a three-ocean navy. She will not have a real two-ocean navy for another four years. Until that time she has to shuttle her ships from ocean to ocean."

The solution to this painfully obvious state of unpreparedness given by Mr. Barber is the usual one of production potentialities. Mass production, however, may or may not be well adapted to turning out effective weapons of war. The author also weakens the impressiveness of his array of figures by giving one example which shows how easily these may be the products of the enthusiastic transatlantic imagination.

U.S.S.R.: Its Significance for the West (by S.C.G.). This is a general survey dealing with the position of Russia in the modern world, her politics, home and foreign, and the problems arising from Russia's peculiar position in the war. Short and readable. (Gollancz, 2/6 net.)

The Time of Your Life

The Time of Your Life, and other plays. By William Saroyan. London: Faber and Faber. 8/6 net.

IN the preface to his first play, "My Heart's in the Highlands," William Saroyan writes:

> Here is a play as real as a street corner. As natural as the earth or sidewalk underfoot, the sky overhead. As true as any fable in the literature of the world. Any man who could be bored with this play could be bored with the sudden vision of the Good Lord negotiating a substantial body of water on foot.

And the strangest thing about it is that he is not far wrong.

When the play was first produced in New York the critics were all agreed that the play, in their own expression, had "got something," but not one of them could hazard a guess at what that something was. I think George Jean Nathan, writing in Newsweek, came nearest the mark when he said:

> The majority of reviewers, while praising the play, complained bitterly that they couldn't discern any clear meaning in it. Which struck some of the rest of us like complaining bitterly over the absence of any clear meaning in Brahms's solo scherzo in E flat minor, the Black Forest in the early morning sunlight, a good hamburger with onions, or human life itself.

The chief appeal in William Saroyan's plays—and, although in book form they lose more than half their enchantment, they still have a very poignant appeal—is the power to create atmosphere; it is more akin to the appeal of music than that of literature. This self-confident Armenian refuses to adjust himself to the conventions either of life or of art, and when he wants to write a play he adapts the ancient art of the drama to meet his own requirements. The resultant plays have no "form" in the accepted sense of the term, and no "message" which could be put into so many words, yet, as John Mason Brown, of the New York Post, said of it, "it does things to you in its wanderings, which a host of dramas that follow a straight and narrow path cannot pretend to do."

The writing, as usual, is a queer mixture of affectation and talent, and just as the reader has reached the point of exasperation with the author's studied eccentricities, he comes across a passage of rare and genuine talent which atones for everything else. In all his vain posturing and bombast, one cannot help feeling as one laughs at him, that Mr. William Saroyan is laughing too.

There are three plays in the book. The longest, and undeniably the best, is "The Time of Your Life"; it is a cross-section of American life which defies description and requires no explanation. In the preface the author again blows his trumpet ostentatiously, but not unjustifiably:

> Like "My Heart's in the Highlands," "The Time of Your Life" will very likely take an important place in the development of the new American Theatre. I know why, but I am going to leave the details to the critics, as I believe in the right of every profession to function.

G.H.G.

The Bell (edited by Sean O'Faolain). The May issue of "The Bell" contains many interesting features, notably an article by Arthur Power on this year's Academy, and a section of photographs from it, taken by Studio One. There is another photograph, too, of Clonfert archway, illustrating an article by Frank O'Connor, "Three Churches." The Bellman this month interviews Maurice Walsh, and the Editor writes about the Gaelic League. There is only one poem in this issue, "Columbus," by Donagh MacDonagh. (Cahill, 1/- net.)

New Novels

The Men from Java. By Jean Malaquais. London: Minerva Press. 7/6 net.

WRITTEN with power and translated with competence, this is a first novel of outstanding ability. It is no popular romantic escapist love story or detective novel, but a piece of real character drawing in the modern manner.

Formless to a degree, the author has something to say rather than certain limits within which to say it, and he has written one of the best novels of recent months.

Java is a small mining district in the South of France with a mixed population of all races who have little contact with their suspicious French neighbours. Their life, with its loves and quarrels, hopes and despairs, makes ample setting for an absorbing story, which has already met with considerable success in its original language.

The Avengers. By Charles Graves. London: Hutchinson. 7/6 net.

THIS book is described as a novel, but it really is a series of accounts of typical Royal Air Force operations. The reader is taken on bombing raids, stratosphere flights, daylight sweeps, night fights, and is given an insight into nearly every type of activity in which the pilots and air crews of the R.A.F. engage.

The characters involved in these operations are given names and conversations, which makes the book much more readable than a series of articles on similar subjects. It is all very interesting and informative. While it may be a novel as much as it is any other generic type of book, it is not the sort of novel that revolves round a hero and heroine.

House in the Dust. By Doris Leslie. London: Hutchinson. 9/6 net.

A bomb from the air has destroyed a house in a London square. "I wonder what the people who used to live there would say if they could come back now," says an onlooker. An old woman beside the speaker did once live in the house, and the rest of the book is the story of her childhood and early marriage, a story of the London of sixty years ago.

The heroine marries an Irishman, a dipsomaniac, one of the "Irish Literary Movement," with whom she has a certain amount of happiness and a great deal of terror, until, in a gallant effort to master his weakness, he passes out of her life. In contracting this marriage she sacrifices a partner who would have brought her more comfort, but possibly as much unhappiness. There are many other interesting characters.

Although both atmosphere and setting are Victorian, the pace of the novel is modern. It is excellently told.

The Sword and the Net. By Warren Stuart. Michael Joseph. 8/- net.

"A really and rarely exciting novel. It doesn't let you put it down," states the opinion of a distinguished novelist on the jacket of this book. But one refuses to be intimidated. No doubt many people will find it an exciting novel, but the detached reader—and there must still be some of these left in the world—will probably put it down at least once from sheer exasperation at its persistent and rather naïve propagandist background. A traitor makes a poor hero, and surely it is not still old-fashioned to maintain that a traitor is a traitor, no matter what cause or nation he betrays.

Science in the Dock

Science in the Dock. By F. W. Westaway. London: Blackie. 7/6 net.

HOW much, if at all, has science really contributed to human happiness and progress? And how much is science responsible, or not responsible, for the misery and brutality which improved methods of warfare have brought upon the human race? These are difficult questions to answer. There are so many aspects and so many varying angles of thought to be considered.

Mr. Westaway has marshalled the "pros" and "cons" to the best of his ability, yet a careful reader of his work would rise unconvinced either way, and most of the questions remain unanswered. Perhaps, the only way to regard this all-important question in its varying aspects is in the light of man's own responsibility for the abuse of his knowledge for bringing upon himself most deservedly the fate he is now undergoing.

The limits of modern science are well-nigh boundless where either construction or destruction are concerned. If man chooses to misuse a substance which can either blast thousands of his fellow-creatures to destruction or be employed in blasting ores out of the earth or in excavating dry docks, harbours or the foundations of stately buildings, mankind is to blame, not the inventor or producer of the substance.

Pure knowledge is a weapon granted to man, and is to blame for the harm it produces precisely as much as the hatchet with which the child maims itself or the responsible wielder creates useful things.

King Edward VII.

Victoria's Heir. By George Dangerfield. London: Constable.

Victoria's heir was, of course, the late King Edward VII. This is not the story of his kingship, but of his much longer period as Prince of Wales. The life of the Prince is set against a contemporary background of English and Continental politics, so that the reader's knowledge of 19th century history is refreshed in a light, and sometimes amusing, way.

Mr. Dangerfield does not make Edward a hero, but a very ordinary Prince, who was overshadowed by his mother, and who occasionally "went off the rails."

At the same time he was a much more admirable character than his German nephew, who really never was forgiven by Edward for some of his strange behaviour, among it a homily on the evils of gambling in royal circles, written at a time when the English Press was getting rather bothered about the Prince's weakness for racing and cards.

YOUNG SINGER'S TRIUMPH

HIGH TRIBUTE BY ADJUDICATOR

THE high light of yesterday's activities at the Feis Ceoil was the dual success of the young Cork singer, Miss Eileen Cagney, who won the gold medal in the soprano class in the morning, and then at night thrilled an overflow audience in the Metropolitan Hall with a rendering of Mimi's aria, "Donde lieta," from the closing act of "La Bohème," which won her the Dramatic Cup for operatic singing. She was awarded the Geoghegan Cup on Thursday, so that she shared with the young Belfast baritone, Norman Hawkins, the vocal honours of the week.

In the Wallis Cup, for songs to own piano accompaniment, there were fifteen entries, and the standard of none fell below 80 per cent. The young Dublin singer, Miss Eithne Graham, who had won the mezzo-soprano class earlier in the week, scored a popular win for the second year in succession.

In the Abbey Lecture Hall the day was given over to singing in Irish, with a fairly big entry for the Irish trios, in which there was splendid work. There was also good support for the competition for the P. J. McCall Memorial Cup for solo singing in Irish.

Mr. George Dodds, who adjudicated, said that he was awarding the cup-winner 91 marks which was the highest he had ever given at any operatic competition since 1933, in Winnipeg. STOCK MARKET REPORTS

DUBLIN EXCHANGE

Markets closed the week on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday in rather subdued fashion, and scattered liquidation produced an easier trend in most departments.

The Second and Fourth National Loans shed fractions, while Financial Agreement Loan eased to 109¼, but 4½ p.c. Land Bonds rose to 116¾.

Banking issues were well maintained, and Nationals firmed up to 39/-. Guinness Units failed to change hands, but were called around 90/-. Rails were still nervous. Great Northern Ord. drooped to 23½. Great Southern Pref. slumped 3½ points to 19, and the Deb. reacted to 65¼.

Dublin Transport Ord. shaded off to 17/3, and Alliance Gas Ord. weakened to 18/6 on the further severe rationing of gas.

DUNLOP OMITS BONUS

The Dunlop Rubber Company is paying the same dividend on the £8,333,023 of Ordinary capital as a year ago, namely, 8 p.c., but no bonus is recommended. Last year a bonus of 2 p.c. was paid.

Net profit for 1941 was £3,186,269, compared with £3,001,855 for 1940. With £632,011 brought in, the amount available for appropriation is £3,818,280.

The directors have transferred as provision for taxation £1,924,620 (against £1,741,880), and to income tax reserve towards the 1942-43 liability £650,000 (same), together accounting for an additional £182,740 over the tax appropriations for 1940. The net profit remaining is £611,649 (against £609,975). A sum of £100,000 is transferred to contingencies reserve (against nil).

Preference dividends paid for the year took £187,500, and the Ordinary dividend will absorb £333,321. The sum carried forward is £622,839, a decrease of £9,172.

The net profits, dividends and bonuses for the past eight years have been as follows:—

		Dividend	Bonus.
1934	£1,687,687	8%	—
1935	1,288,244	8%	—

The final Ordinary dividend is reduced from 3¼ per cent., tax free, to 3 per cent., tax free, making 6 per cent., tax free, for the year, against 6¼ per cent., tax free. Employés' Benevolent Fund again receives £1,000, and a further £10,000 is placed to contingency reserve, the balance forward being £12,471, compared with £12,790 brought in.

Meeting, Grand Canal quay, Dublin, May 29, at noon.

LONDON EXCHANGE

London Stock Markets exhibited firmness yesterday, though, with the week-end in view, business was rather slack. Gilt-edged securities remained in favour, but idle conditions prevailed in the Home Railway market. The Ord. and Pref. stocks were inclined to droop.

Some encouraging company results, together with the relaxation of the security conversion ban had a stimulating influence on the Industrial market, and modest gains were recorded. The Dunlop Rubber dividend was in accord with recent market forecasts and the preliminary profit figures gave satisfaction. Cable and Wireless Ord. moved up on dividend hopes. A revival of interest was witnessed in British Celanese on rumours of an impending scheme, and the Ord. rose to 7/7½.

The undertone of mines was generally firm.

The Oil share market was distinctly brighter, and Rubbers and Teas finished the week quietly, but with a firm tone.

OIL IN DUBLIN CELLAR
COMPANY'S CASE
Evidence was given in favour of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company on the resumed hearing before Mr. Justice Black in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday of the action of Patrick R. J. Tobin, publican, 82 Sir John Rogerson's quay, against them for damages for injury which, he stated, had been caused to his business by oil which had escaped from an underground pipeline of the company and flooded his cellar to a depth of several inches. The company denied the allegation.
The further hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.
Mr. R. Hill assistant engineer, employed by the company, stated that when he received the complaint about oil in Mr. Tobin's premises he visited the place, and found no smell of oil in the shop. There was a slight smell over the grating outside. There was no sign of oil in the vault nearest the river, except in a hole, which had been dug, and where there was water with oil floating on top. There was no sign of oil in any of the other vaults or in the beer cellar. The floors were quite dry. A test was made of 900 gallons of water pumped out of the hole, and they contained only 30 gallons of oil.

100LBS. GELIGNITE
Alleged to have stolen one hundred pounds of gelignite, two exploders, cable, one circuit tester and forty electric detonators, James McDonnell, 8 MacSweeney's villas, Cork, appeared before the Special Criminal Court yesterday. The State also accuses him of breaking into a magazine in Co. Cork; of conspiracy and membership of an unlawful organisation. The trial date was fixed for May 29.

LICENCE TRANSFER
At the Rathfarnham District Court yesterday, Mr. E. O'Beirne, solicitor, applied on behalf of Mr. William Sandys, 27 Westmoreland street, Dublin, for an ad interim transfer of the licence held by Mr. John P. Kerins at 37 Main street, Dundrum, Co. Dublin. He said that Mr. and Mrs. Kerins had been killed during an air raid in London. It was impossible to establish whether the husband or wife had died first. Mr. Sandys, he said, was a chartered accountant, and he was buying these premises in trust for a company, of which Mr. John R. Murphy was managing director. The company proposed to conduct this public-house. Mr. Reddin granted the application.

Galway Man's Death—The death has occurred of Mr. Edward V. Reid, of Greenaway Rad, Greenaway Gardens, Hampstead, youngest and last surviving son of the late Mr. Thomas Reid, Wood Quay House, Galway, and late Managing Director, Dalgety and Co., London and Australia. He was uncle of Mr. T. S. Reid, Hibernian Bank, Delvin.
